OPEN BUT PRIVATE

Law offices have their own unique set of design considerations. These considerations manifest in a need for visual privacy to maintain a sense of discretion, acoustical privacy to protect confidentiality, and aesthetics to ensure appropriate representation of the law firm.

FLEXIBLE YET DISCRETE

Opening glass walls provide ultimate flexibility within the workplace while also providing a space to conduct confidential meetings.

A modern office lounge area featuring a large glass wall with frosted glass panels for privacy. The space includes a round wooden coffee table with a vase of white flowers, several brown leather armchairs, and a patterned rug. Large green plants are positioned near a window on the left. The ceiling has recessed lighting and air vents.

CUSTOMIZED VISUAL PRIVACY

Glazing is customizable to allow you to create a private environment that remains full of light. Choose from a plethora of design options: from obscured glass to artistic or branded finishes.

MAINTAIN CONFIDENTIALITY

NanaWall systems form acoustical barriers when closed, protecting privileged conversations and confidential exchanges while allowing maximum natural light to penetrate deep into the space.

MAXIMIZE SQUARE FOOTAGE

The single track sliding HSW60 system allows the office to function as multiple conference rooms as well as a client reception area. When open, this remotely stacked, hidden-away system transforms the overall space into a large open area in which community events can be held.

ENHANCE INTERIOR DESIGN

Opening glass walls enable the best utilization of space due to their ability to facilitate complex designs including open corners, segmented curves, or disappearing walls.

We offer wood and aluminum frames in a diverse selection of finishes, as well as frameless systems that allow for maximum glass. NanaWall panels are available with varying levels of infill depending on the needs of your project. Our diverse breadth of product options is sure to fulfill your aesthetic needs.
